In Esparza v. Kohl's, Inc., Plaintiff brought a putative class action accusing Kohl's of allowing a third party to unlawfully eavesdrop on him while he had a brief conversation with an agent on a chat feature on Kohl's website.

Kohl's moved to dismiss all claims, but the United States District Court for the Southern District of California granted the motion only as to the claims for violation of the California Constitution and intrusion upon seclusion. The court allowed Plaintiff's claims under the California Invasion of Privacy Act (CIPA) and the California Computer Data Access and Fraud Act (CDAFA), to move forward.
