On 13 September 2024, the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress announced its "Decision on Implementing the Gradual Extension of the Statutory Retirement Age" ("Decision"). On the same date, the State Council issued its "Measures on the Gradual Extension of the Statutory Retirement Age" ("Measures"), which go into more detail on how the new retirement policy will be implemented.

In light of China's rapidly aging population, the Chinese government has for many years now been discussing extending the statutory retirement age, which is low by global standards.
