

TOP 5 WEEKLY NEWS

FTC sues GM for selling location and behavioral data without drivers' consent.

Read more: <https://shorturl.at/WQXdE>

General Motors (GM) failed to disclose to customers that it tracked their precise locations and driving behavior and sold the data to third parties, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) alleged in a proposed order.

GM and most other automakers offer internet connectivity with their cars. Car companies that collect the data end up with huge amounts of information about people, their driving habits, and the places they visit. The federal government considers this information private and protected under rules that require that people give their consent before any sensitive or personal data, including location data, is collected.

FIFA bans Venezuelan official for 5 years and imposes fine for financial irregularities.

Read more: <https://shorturl.at/E6zFl>

TikTok shutdown in the United States does not resolve tech risks: Amnesty International.

Read more: <https://shorturl.at/3ddbF>

Edmonton entrepreneur joins effort to ramp up anti-fraud protections for immigrants.

Read more: <https://shorturl.at/AcjTM>

Hungary: Restrictions on the employment of migrant workers.

Read more: <https://shorturl.at/yLMIM>

