Errol Musk, the father of tech magnate Elon Musk, has been accused of sexually abusing at least five children in his family, although three police investigations did not lead to formal charges against the South African patriarch, The New York Times reported Tuesday.

The allegations reportedly include claims of abuse in South Africa and California against five of Errol Musk's children and stepchildren, according to police and court records, personal correspondence, and interviews with family members and social workers, cited by the NYT.
